Bollinger Grande Annee Grande annee, as the name suggests, signifies that bollinger's vintage champagne is only released during 'great' years. The grande annee blend comes only from a particularly fine harvest. When such a harvest occurs the house selects its best wines, cru by cru and grape variety by grape variety - the key to the particular year. Each wine is individually fermented in oak casks prior to blending. On average, the blend is composed of 65% pinot noir and 35% chardonnay. The "grande annee" always ages for a minimum of five years in its bottle.	1996	£270
Perrier-Jouet belle Epoque A beautiful bottle decorated with their signature floral design and one of the top classic champagnes, golden yellow wine tinged with amber. Wonderful nose, packed with maturing aromas. A subtle note of oxidation adds interest to the oily white fruits, layered with nuances of coffee, toffee, honey, cashew nuts and butterscotch. Sublimely elegant on the palate. Light and fresh, with bright acidity supporting the gentle, creamy texture and correct, slightly sharp mousse. Full flavoured on the finish	1990	£470
